Prayer is one of the oldest spiritual practices, found across virtually all religious traditions—from Christianity and Islam to Hinduism, Buddhism, and indigenous faiths. Historically, prayer has served as a conduit for communication with the divine, a means to seek guidance, express gratitude, or find comfort. During hard times, prayer becomes especially vital as it offers a way to articulate fears and hopes, forging a connection that provides reassurance amid chaos.

In many cultures, prayer is intertwined with community and ritual, reinforcing social bonds and collective resilience. For example, the Psalms in the Judeo-Christian tradition are poetic prayers that have historically provided solace in times of distress, echoing universal themes of suffering and divine compassion. Similarly, Islamic prayers, or Duas, are often recited during hardship to seek divine intervention and patience.

René Descartes' Meditations on First Philosophy is a foundational text that aims to establish a secure basis for scientific knowledge. It systematically questions and reconstructs beliefs, leading to profound conclusions about existence, knowledge, and the nature of reality.

The Method of Doubt

One of the central techniques Descartes employs is the method of radical doubt, often summarized as:

- Question everything: Descartes doubts all sensory perceptions, the existence of the physical world, and even mathematical truths.
- Aim for certainty: Through skepticism, he seeks to find indubitable foundations upon which knowledge can be built.

The Cogito: "I think, therefore I am"

The most famous conclusion from Descartes' meditations is the cogito:

"I think, therefore I am" (Cogito, ergo sum).

This statement emerges as an undeniable truth uncovered through systematic doubt. Regardless of the deception of the senses or the possibility of an evil demon, the very act of doubting confirms the existence of the thinking self.

The Nature of the Mind and Body

Descartes argues for a dualistic separation between mind and body:

- Res cogitans: The thinking, non-material mind.
- Res extensa: The physical, extended body and matter.

This distinction leads to significant discussions about the mind-body problem, consciousness, and personal identity.

The Existence of God

In later meditations, Descartes presents philosophical arguments for the existence of God, including:

- The Trademark Argument: The idea of a perfect being (God) must have been placed in us by a being that actually exists, because we could not conceive of such a perfect being without its existence.

- God as a Guarantee of Truth: The existence of a benevolent God ensures that our clear and distinct perceptions are truthful.
